Get ready for an exciting team-building experience with the Rudolph Run, where groups will come together to design and construct a 'sleigh track' that transports a ball along its entire length, powered solely by gravity! The ball must roll unaided from the start to the end. Bonus points for unnecessarily engineering jumps, twists or even a loop the loop into the crazy structure.

Our Rudolph Run is perfect for teams of all sizes, and with larger groups, the event becomes a spectacular sight to behold! You'll need plenty of space, as the structures can grow quickly. The Rudolph Run combines the logical and creative talents of participants in a massive, coordinated challenge that promises lots of fun. Teams will be split up, with each tasked to build a section of the track using provided materials to create an engineering marvel. Effective organization and communication are essential to ensure that each section aligns perfectly for a seamless transition. Can your team add a creative twist and complete a loop-the-loop?

Teams will also be provided with Christmas baubles and tinsel to decorate their tracks and will be tasked with creating snowflakes and paper chains to adorn their creations. Once all sections are finished, each group will get one test run to make any adjustments before the Grand Finale. This event combines great team building, mixing planning, communication, and creativity into an enjoyable festive experience. Plus, it's available as an outdoor activity!
